Peristeri is one of the larger residential municipalities in West Athens, and the metro changed it. Anthoupoli and Peristeri stations are both roughly two kilometres away, putting Syntagma within a straightforward commute. Bournazi Square, the district's commercial heart, is 1.5 km; Peristeri Park 2.2 km; the University of West Attica 4 km. Prices here sit well below the coastal and central districts for comparable build quality.

Three ground-floor apartments, converted from non-residential use, each with its own street entrance and a private walled backyard — 23 to 30 m² of enclosed outdoor space, laid out with a sail shade, built-in concrete bench seating, an outdoor dining setting and a BBQ station. Internally 46.4 to 50.6 m², two bedrooms and one bathroom in each, delivered fully furnished: sage-green joinery, arched reeded-glass windows, timber shelving with integrated LED lighting, travertine-effect bathrooms with oak vanities.

The threshold follows the zone and the route

The building is presented as a change-of-use conversion from non-residential to residential — the route under which the €250,000 threshold can apply. The threshold is not location-based and is never automatic: we obtain the change-of-use permit number and date and the title registration for the specific unit, and have them reviewed, before any reservation is taken. The applicable level is confirmed per unit, not per project.

RENTAL OUTLOOK

Peristeri lets steadily to families and to staff working across West Athens, and a two-bedroom ground-floor unit with a private yard is a distinct product in a market dominated by upper-floor flats. Furnished delivery shortens the time to first tenant, and the entry price keeps the gross yield competitive with more central stock.
